

did the Mrs. came and opened the door. She always keeps the door locked, of course, nights, and then I walked into the house and she says, "Enoch, it is a shame for you to go out and fish. If I was you I would eat supper early. Do you know what time it is?" She says, "It is close to nine o'clock." So I walked in the house. I set the box down and the pole in and walked into the kitchen. Just as I walked into the kitchen she says, "It won't be long; it is so close to nine." Just then the clock struck nine. Now, that is standard time because I never change my watch.

Q So that daylight saving time it was an hour later?

A An hour later, ten, and the clock struck nine.

Q How long did it take you to go from the beach to your home?

A Well, you could easily test that yourself, and I think if you did it in three minutes, then you might allow five.

Q Did you stop on the way at all? A. No, walked right straight into the house. Nobody said anything to me after I left here, and I just said good night. I don't know who-- there was several here, of course. We all said good night, and went right on in, as the clock struck nine, and I always carried the standard time. I always call this-- they all laugh at me--I always call this fool time.

Q Do you set your time according to any other watch?

A I set my time with the railroad station, compare it every
